Knockree Hostel was a typical Irish farmhouse on the hill which was given a 21st century make-over to cater for visitors keen to escape Dublin city and explore the Wicklow Mountain trails. This traditional first resting stop on the Wicklow Way has views of the tranquil Glencree Valley which is framed by Maulin mountain and the iconic Sugarloaf Mountain rising from the sea, making it a sight to remember.

Sitting in 65 acres of woodlands, the hostel is a hive of outdoor activity. Our partner Eco Adventure Ireland run activities on the land and teach schoolchildren about the environment through its river studies course, while our volunteer conservation group have a range of sustainability projects to do with tree protection, deer management and river bank protection. Its proximity to the city and its open plan design attracts large groups for events such as mini conferences, team building outings and even weddings.
Our converted mountain hunting lodge in Wicklow, Glenmalure Hostel is steeped in the past and nestled in the heart of a remote valley surrounded by mountains. It was a holiday retreat for key Irish historical figures such as WB Yeats, Maud Gonne, Countess Markievicz and Padraig Pearse and has been lovingly restored by our local volunteers who are passionate about the old school hostelling experience.

The back to basics atmosphere of this hostel is far removed from modern life and offers peace and serenity to those who seek it. The Hostel itself has no electricity, no phone signal or no running water, except for the Avonbeg River flowing beside it. It is perfect for hikers, those who want a digital detox or nature lovers who want to take in the unspoiled beauty of Wicklow. Our volunteer managers have stories to tell of the place and keep the kettle boiling for visitors.
5 : Newgrange Lodge

Our restored farmhouse in the heart of the Boyne Valley, Newgrange Lodge is situated next to the UNESCO World Heritage Site of Newgrange and Knowth.
